Characters

ALICE SPENCER

Full of questions, wonder, and a tenacious stubbornness when it comes to achieving her goals. Entering a confusing time of transition in her body while trying to survive a distressed situation - living in a tube station, displaced from her family. She possesses a wonderful imagination that allows her to escape her present situation.

Strong contemporary pop/rock singing voice.

(1:20 - END)

Audition Monologue:

Alfred.

Let me read to you. I went back, I found our book.

I'll bring you to our world again.

Come with me.

You can run there. You can breathe there. Then they won't take you away.

We'll have each other, always.

All this - we can make it disappear.

“‘Dear dear,’ Alice said, ‘how very queer everything is today...

I wonder if I've been changed in the night.’

Curiouser and curiouser!”

(Examining her newly-developing body)

Oh my goodness me! I'm huge!

“Where have my... shoulders got to?”

I mean, “This can't be me - not as I was yesterday.”

Still, it's no use going back to yesterday.

I was a different person then.

But, if I am not me...

ALFRED HALLAM

Alice's ailing childhood friend. Alfred contracted tuberculosis while living on the streets and is now being cared for by a small medical staff in the Underground station.

Doubles as White Rabbit: Attractive, obsessive-compulsive, and a little manic - running from something he doesn't understand.

Doubles as March Hare.

Strong contemporary pop/rock singing voice.

(To Alice) We must, must reach the end, before I end.

I have to put a period.

The sentence has no meaning, if it does not end –

And for you to carry on, you must care less for me.

“It broke his heart to hurt her so,
and yet he had to do.”

I have to help you let me go:

Now, follow me, I followed you.

(White Rabbit)

Oh my dear dear fur – and whiskers!

The Queen! The Queen!

She'll have my head – you understand?

As sure as ferrets are ferrets. Executed.

I am rather fearful of losing my head.

You know how Her Majesty is.

How loud she gets.

HAROLD PUDDING

Shall we have some tea? Shall we?

Tea for two? For him and me – and me.

But me, I'm sound. I'm all sound now, me.

This time I'll pass...

Sir, yes Sir!

Pudding. Harold Pudding, reporting for duty, Sir.

(As Mad Hatter)

So, shall we have a riddle?

All right, then. Since you insist:

Why is a raven like a writing-desk?

I haven't the faintest idea. (Bursts into laughter)

Come, we live in riddles, Child – and sometimes there's no answering them.

Mad, mad – we've all gone mad here.

(As Cheshire Cat)

The question is: when some needs to go.

“whoooo” are you” to make them stay?

Perhaps that is the story.

It isn't hard to say hello, it's how we say good-bye.

Alice!

You cannot keep believing impossible things.

You want too much –

It isn't how much time. It's how we use the time.

Perhaps, he hasn't much to give.

Alice, pause, and let the picture in.

To be there., Puss, that's to be in Wonderland.

Wretched Pig –

my loveliness sagged, just watching them.

You ripped the plumpy from my butt and left me fat and flatulent!

you selfish tart,
and now my day's just fart fart fart!

And so I'm left – with no one left.

You stole my soul
and made me old, you pig!

You're in some other dream.

You you you must put down that book.

In you head, that is.

Set it down a minute –
all that Alice-ness...

One puff...?

Just one?

Stops time, it does.

Come. Shall we... disappear?

The way, some say, a lover disappears into the kiss...?

Falling apart and anxious to a comic extent. A nervous yet somehow still threatening doctor tasked with managing the Underground station.

"Beware the frumious Bandersnatch,

Ward D.
(To Dr. Buttridge) As good-as-dead.

(As Queen of Hearts)

The Queen enters like a vision of royal majesty.
(Benignly) As you were.

Well, I am proud – so proud,
to behold this record-breaking crowd.
Which of you, can we say loves us most?

(Noticing Alice) You?
Come back for another look, have you?
And found yourself too big for picture-books?
Too huge for fools like us?
